Rumours are rife of a fight having occurred between the Princeian and Austrian troops, who are occupying Kolding. Not only, it is said, did the Allied troops fail to neach other with nunkets and bayonets, but the cannon were actually brought to bear, on both sides, against each other's camp. The two Governments energetically deap that any such fight took place, but it specars to be certain that all the counds of a regular battle were heard at a time when it is certain that the Allies were not fighting with any Danila troops, and that grass numbers of wounded men, both Prassian and Austrian, were brought into the Castle of Kolding, whose injuries could only be accounted for on the supposition of a fratricidal combat having taken place between themselves. When Earl Eaussell declared in Parliament that a new Holy Alliance, being opposed to the spirit and tendencies of the age, must necessarily full to the ground, he, no doubt, made a statement which, a generation or two hence, may prove to have been true. But the logic of a false position will probably be cogeniancy by the keep up the bond between the three despots long enough to cause much wrong, suffering, and perturbation to Rurrepa, which is on tamely allowing the tragety of "Might against Bight!" to be played out against brave and progressive little Penmark.

The young King of Bavaria will it is said, leave his kingdom for a few years, under the administration of his uncle, Prince Lutipold, as Regent, residing, meanwhile, in the principal capitals of Europe, pursuing his studies, and making acquaintence with the people. At Genera will shortly be held another Congrees, having for its aim the foundation of a "Buropean Association for the relief of the wounded in war." This largely philanthropic institution proposes to piace itself under the joint protection of all the Powers of Europe, from whom it hopes to obtain a guarantee of sid and support in the care of the wounded, whom it would receive indiscriminately from the battle field, succounting with equal real and devotion the victims of that, which, "were their peoples wise, kirgs could not they at."

All the accounts received from Maxico attest the general enthusiasm with which the new Sovereigns have been received in that country. present motion in the spirit of justice, and therefore he should oppose it.

Alderman OATLEY said the feelings of the Council had been so ofen tested upon this question that he thought it unwise in bringing it forward sgain. He should advise Alderman Woods to withdraw it until the next election, when perhaps there would be a change in the Council. He did not thin there was any possibility of carrying a sewerage rate by the Council as at present constituted. He was not at all sure if this motion was carried, and two-thirds of the citizens paid the rate, some very little member of the Council would not propose that the money should be re-funded. Having supported motions on previous occasions for a similar purpose, he should vote for the present motion, but he questioned the advisability of carrying the motion at present.

inneed. Having supported motions en previous occasions for a similar purpose, he should vote for the present motion, but he questioned the advisability of carrying the motion at present.

Alderman SUTHERLAND thought it was unadvisable to have many resolutions in reference to this matter, but on principle be should vote for it.

Alderman MACINTOSH very much questioned the legality of the motion before the Council. It was ridiculous to fix a rate upon houses assessed at £10 a year, when there was scarcely a house in the city assessed at a smaller amount than £50. He intended to vote spainst every proposal to collect a sewerage rate until the matter had been settled by the Legislature.

Alderman Runnet thought it would be unfair to take any further steps in this matter until the formal resolution to which the Council had previously assented had been carried out. He would vote for any reasonable rate after the caker resolution had been carried out.

Alderman BUTLER should support the motion. It only asked for a rate that would pay the interest of shoot half the cost of the sewers, and did they think the Government would do more than that? It was unreasonable to suppose that the Government would not charge us one-half of the debt. He believed it was the alderman and not the discens who were not willing to pay the rate.

Alderman Street said he had always voted for the collection of the sewerage rate, and should do so again; but he thought Alderman Woods might allow it to stand over till the beginning of the year.

Alderman Altaet said he had always voted for the collection of the sewerage rate, and should do so again; but he thought Alderman Woods might allow it to stand over till the beginning of the year.

Alderman Extent said he had always to said he was willing to let the caster stand over till 1855."

Alderman Fixel seconded the ameadment.

Alderman Woods replied, and in doing so said he was willing to let the caster stand over till 1856."

Alderman STEEL said he had always voted for the collection of the saverage rate, and should do so again; but he thought Alderman Mreach, seconded by Alderman Kitpan, and agreed to—

"That the report of the Improvement Committee, received on the 3rd inviant, recommending that the kerbing and guttering on the north side of Market-street, between york and Susser streets, be repaired or renewed, at a cost not exceeding £28, be adopted."

"That is accordance with the recommendation of the Ey-Law' Committee, a public stand for one omalous by and the same is hereby appointed, on the south-west corner of George and King streets, in King-street."

Alderman Woods might allow it to stand two little in the did not think this would be a fair one. He would support a rate of 2 per cent upon all city preparation.

OUTOSER 12.—Since my last communication little has transpired worth recording.

The Season.—For the time of the year the weather has been very changeable, I might almost say winter has returned from the prevalence of sharp cutting winds and rain,—it is very hard to conjecture the result it may have on the growing crops. That pest, the sphis, has been causing very great havoc in the gardens, in fact nothing seems to come amise to them, they appear in myriads upon every thing in the shape of green stuff and vegetables.

Public Dinner to Messes Badders and Cartes.—This affair came off at the Commercial Hotel, Berrima, on Monday evening, the object of the social meeting being to express gratitude for the valuable past services, and regret that the geathern above named were struck off the new Commission of the Peace.

Mr. John Morrice, M.L.A., presided. The dinner was got up in Haffield's usual style—abundance of everything; the wines of Al quality, to which those assembled did ample justice. The speccalifying was very much to the point, and must have been gratifying to the guests of the evening, who were so cordially received, and the very Sattering matter in which their public and private worth were estimated by those present. The urmost decorum prevailed, and all passed off as could be desired.

Owing to the absence of the Imperial Court from Paris, and the departure of many families for the baises de mer, the Paris fashlone for August must be considered as those rather of the Dispersion than of that favoured locality which generally gives an impulse to impossion, the recorded as those rather of the Dispersion than of that favoured locality which generally gives an impulse to impossion at a tondreds of an action of the result of the complete even at hundreds of segment of the complete even as the contract of th costume just alluded to. The bavolet is usually replaced by abow in tuile or by a parkand of small flowers gracefully arranged.

Walking Dress.—Rube and paletot of grey foulard, with three rows of dark violet silk and passementarie trimming on the skirt; round the edge of the paisots, seroes the shoulders, and on the curfs, a single row of similar trimming is adapted with a most pleaning effect. The small round chappan is in white tuile bowillonne, the havolet being replaced by a large tuile bow; Evening Dress.—Very pale yellow alpace robe, ornamented with silk embroidery in several shades of velvet. The skirt-capecially presents a very preity and novel appearance, and the dress is completed by the Moldavian vest, and the muslin chemisette, of which only a small portion is seen above the black silk plastron edged with violet. The head-dress is the coffured Catalance, in Valenciannes lace with black and violet wivet bow in front.

Walking Dress for a Young Lady.—Light stone-coloured toilet, the paletot and robe being of uniform colour, but frimmed with pink silk ornaments soutches. The paletot is valatively more abunicably decorated than the skirt. Tasson chapten Window, almoss covered with assist' fauthers and white fasthers, the latter placed in front.

The Sydney Morning weraid. TUESDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1864.

THE Ministry having held office for a year and a day, and thus become free of the welkin enter upon their Parliamentary duties with an established reputation. They will not now navigate with a "prentice hand," but after having had full time to explore all the corners and inlets of office, and to ascertain precisely in what track they shall follow their precisely in what track they shall follow their predecessors, or how they may improve upon their course. The postponement of the meeting of Parlia ment to this period of the year has been denounced as an audacious delay, but after all it is not without example, and that not very remote. It is only necessary to turn to the files of 1862, when it will be found that the l'arliament was prorogued on the 20th December, and met again on the 23rd June 1863-a period of more than six months Mr. Martin's proregation was on the 22nd April, and within six months he will be found n his place to answer for his Ministry. There is, however, this difference which some may consider not slight—that the meeting of Parliament under Mr. Cowren was in June, giving five months for discussion and legislation, while we have now reached the 18th of October, and are within two months of the term of our Appropria-tion Act. On the other hand, again, there is another difference which it is only just note—that when the Cowren Ministry met the House in June, they were undisturbed by official change and the consequent elections, while our Ministry in October have to plead the state of business when Mr. COWPER quitted office and the occupation of their time in the mere preliminaries of induction We do not say that this meets the charge

Unquestionably the state of our finances re dered it an obligation to take the earliest oppor-tunity possible for their adjustment. Every day there has been an accumulation of debt an increase of difficulty, and we have now but two months before the season of the year vill, according to custom, dictate the suspension of business. The first week will decide the probability of permanence in our Cabinet. It will show whether during the recess they have obtained supporters sufficient to face the strong and resolute opposition which they will have to enof their party to understand their position, and we have long crased to regard the character of measures or the merits of administration as at certain clue to the judgment of Parliament Ministers will tell off their supporters by other rules of calculation, and whether they retain office or not will simply depend upon the personal interest or said depend upon the personal interest or said majority. If there is more to be obtained by supporting the existing Cabinet doubtless they will find their friends true as the needle to the north; but if their capacity to satisfy this condition is doubted, and the "waiters upon Providence" think it best to change the venue, we may be sure they will soon have the alternative of resignation or dissolution.

What then are the pretensions of the present Ministry to support upon which their friends may calculate as justifying their votes? They have not caused the financial embarrassment the have to combat. This, whatever be its amount or pressure, must be traced to other hands. But their effort to repair the breach in public credit shook our commercial interests to their foundation, and we have not yet recovered, nor shall we for some years to come, the effect of the protection scheme which, indeed, partly encouraged by the proposed satisf of their predecessors, reversed entirely our fiscal policy. Are we to have any repetition of the attempt? On this point we shall oon be informed, but most certainly if any effort to revive that unhappy measure should appear in the propositions of the Government they will encounter a just, a strenuous, and we hope a successful opposition. On this point we must finally understand all candidates for office. If we are to have protection let us have the advantage of protection. Let us shut out all the world-"work for one another and spend our own money among our own people, according to the theory. We may then come according to the theory. We may then come to some early understanding of its results, but a system which puts money into the pockets of three or four sets of tradesmen, and robs all the rest, and which, without establishing permanently anything, is ruinous to that deplorable.

We do not argue now against protection as a theory. That may be left open to every man's judgment, but one thing is clear, that any system of protection will, to Sydney—whose life is in its commerce—be inevitable and utter

No scheme of taxation which the wit of man could devise would be generally acceptable. That perhaps which would have most partisans That perhaps which would have most partisans would be the imposition on persons supposed to have property of a large fine, to be spent for the benefit of those who have none. Such has been in all countries the great idea. But against this scheme are many practical objections. The amount levied upon realised wealth can never be very large, as those who are wealthy form but a very small portion of any community, and that its immediate effect is to dimnish the and that its immediate effect is to diminish th value of all properties liable to the impost, and thus to discourage their reproduction. Wherever this scheme has been attempted it has indeed this scheme has been attempted it has indeed given money to those who have never earned it and gratified the idle and vindictive, but it has also checked the growth of public and private wealth, and the consequent employment and comfort of the great body of the people. Small indeed, comparatively speaking, is the advantage to any individual, but great is the loss to the entire community. There are, however, taxes which being intended for the improvement of property itself, while instantly promoting the general comfort and convenience, naturally fall upon wealth in its accumulation and its use. The imposition and distribution of such taxes should certainly be vested in the hands of those by whom they and distribution of such taxes should certainly be vested in the hands of those by whom they are paid, and not committed to the scramble of universal suffrage. If the Misisters are in a condition to make such a transfer of burdens from the general revenue and nunicipal institutions, they will have done much to uphold the public credit, and to satisfy the fair claims both of population and property.

The next point which will expose the Misistry to some animadversion is the Commission of the Peace. We believe that some very curious blunders were made in its construction. Of these several have been repaired. The Ministers, hewever, laid down rules by which undoubtedly they will be tried. Can they complain should they be consumed severely if, in applying those rules in certain quarters, they have broken them from partial motives in others? The Commission of the Peace is upon the whole an instance of Ministeria is upon the whole an instance of Ministerial courage, for which they deserve commendation. There were formerly names which disgraced it. There were others utterly unsuited from altered circumstances or efficial position. There were others whose appointment had been intended for nothing but the reward of a political service, and whose magisterial functions were and whose magisterial functions were never performed. That many of these cases were dealt with by the Ministry ought to be told to their honour, and will stand in contrest with the violated promises which taught us to expect a correction of these evils by other hands. But then it is said the Ministers did what they condemned.

The Ministers will also, doubtless, give an account of their Border policy—the establishment of Custom-houses on the Murray, and the unhappy relations between this country and Is it true that on the other a de of the water the olive branch has been held out? Is it true that efforts have been made—though indirectly—by which the whole difficulty would be overcome and fair compensation made to this country for its Customs? Is it true that the provoking demands in reference to the navigation of the river have been so far explained as to be no longer of practical import? that the Ministry are standing upon a ceremony -waiting for a movement on the other side which may save their dignity? On all these points we shall be informed. We hope our CHIEF SECRETARY will take warning from the fate of Mr. Coles' female dog. It was a point of honour with that animal never to yield the wall. This claim was commonly allowed, for who would dispute with a resolute asserter of her rights? One day, however, a cart wheel coming that way, and the principle being strictly maintained way, and the principle coing strictly maintained this spirited member of the Colle family saved her dignity but was crushed to death! We are not so strong as Victoria, and excepting the matter of right (which was also with the dog), we have nothing in our favour in this conwe have nothing in our favour in this con-flict. Let us remember the melancholy fate of an animal which, in standing upon ceremony, sat k to rise no more. But we need not antici pare. The "collective wisdom" of the colony will soon throw light upon all these topics, and it will be our duty to look on not with indiffer-ence but impartiality.

THE successful construction and launch, in our harbour, of an iron steamer, of five hundred tons burthen, is an event that justifies congratulation. It is an advance upon any previous achievement in the same line, and it is the harbinger of still further progress. The importation of iron steamers from England has been very great of late years. Scarcely a mail arrives without bringing tidings of the launch of one or more vessels destined for the Australian colonies. The great development of colonisation northwards, the increasing intercourse among the several colonies, and the migratory movements of gold diggers, especially to New Zealand and back, have given employment to a much larger number of steam vessels than were formerly in these waters. In the cattle trade, and in the coal trade, too, there is an rereasing disposition to substitute steam vessels for sailing vessels. One vessel indeed, specially adapted for the cattle trade, has recently sent home again from an inability to find re-munerative employment. This was due partly to temporary and local causes. The free movement of stock has been greatly impeded by the unfortunate prevalence of pleuro-pneumonia in cattle, and of the scab in sheep. If it had not been for this double pastoral scourge we should have seen a much more marked migration of stock both by sea and by land than we have witnessed. The efforts that are being made to colonise the North and North-west coast rather favour the use of steam vessels to tranship stock, for where the land journey is very long and through territory liable to drought, the risks and cost of a sea passage are, perhaps, to be preferred to those to be encountered by

The multiplication of steamers in our coasting trade necessarily leads to the multiplication and enlargement of those establishments in which such vessels can be repaired. though the steamers have been imported from the mother country in the first instance, the overhauling must necessarily be done on the spot. When the repairs become very extensive they approach in the aggregate to the skill and labour requisits to build a vessel ab initio. some of our vessels there is scarcely a part of the machinery that has not at one time or other been renewed, and several steamers have been cut in half and lengthened. the capacity, therefore, workshops to turn local turn a good sized steamer there could be no question, the only doubt was as to the economy of the process. It is satisfactory to find that of the process. It is satisfactory to find that the latest experiment promises to show that there will be a saving in favour of colonial workmanship. It is expected that the total cost of the new steamer will be about two thousand pounds less than it would have cost to place her in this port ready for service. The distance from England acts as a very consider-able protection. When a vessel is ordered from the mother country, the money has to be the mother country, the money has to be remitted, superintendence has to be provided for, the cost of the outward passage has to be provided, and the ship on arrival has to under-go an overhaul. Time, too, is gained by making the vessel on the spot, and time is often

When we produce iron from our own mines. when we produce iron from our own mines, and are able to roll plates, the local cost of building iron ships will probably be still further reduced. And there is good reason to hepe that, at no distant day, the production of local iron will be sufficient at least to meet local demands. Increasing attention has been devoted of lets to the availablement of our trong demands. Increasing attention has been devoted of late to the availableness of our iron ore, and though enterprise is still a little there is some ground for hoping that the days of failure and procrastination are nearly numbered, and that a successful beginning will be made to turn our iron ore to profitable account. When that is done, and iron is supplied in sufficient quantity at a reasonable price, the manufacture of iron articles may progress more rapidly.

The advance that has been made in the construction of steamboats is a signal illustration of the benefits of free trade, and of the way in which free trade, if allowed its proper develop-ment, sustains and promotes manufactures. ment, sustains and promotes manufactures. If there had been a heavy protective tax on the importation of steamboats, we should have head fewer of them, and there would have been less demand for ampliances to repair them. There would have been less work, and fewer men in the yards, and therefore smaller facilities for the construction of new boats. In this way protection would have retarded rather than have advanced the development of local manufacture. It is on the basis of free trade that we have reared the capability to build iron vessels to advantage. It is the commerce which free trade has developed that employs our large fleet of steamships—it is the steamships that have called into existence such establishments as that at Pyrmont-and it is the existence of such establishments, sustained as they are by commerce, that admits of steamships being constructed here to advantage. The manufacture, therefore, has been called into existence by free-trade. Take away the basis and the superstructure falls. Such a tariff as that first proposed by Mr. EAGAR would have sertiously invested as the superstructure falls. have seriously injured our intercolonial com-merce, and would have counteracted the existing tendency for the colonial ateam fleet tristing tendency for the cotonial ateam neet to rendezvous in Port Jackson. A still more protective tariff would have had this effect to a still larger extent. Disperse our fleet of inter-colonial steamers, and make other ports their homes, and our ability to build as well as repair would suffer instant detriment. Manufacturing industry in the shipbuilding department, would receive a blow which would not be compensated by any tax on the importation of readymade vessels. The fact that the Member the Assembly, who specially represents the iron-trades, is an avowed protectionist, would seem to imply that the iron-workers look with favour upon this retrograde policy. How far this is so we cannot say, perhaps there is a variety of opinion on the subject in the trade. But there is no doubt whatever about the fact that the employment of a large number of iron-workers arises out of free trade, and that that employment would be endangered if free trade

THE BEELY TO THE VICE REGAL SPRECH.—We understand that the address in reply to the speech of his Excusivery in opening Farlianness will, in the Legislative Council, be moved by Mr. Alexander Campbell, and seconded by Mr. Blaxland; and that in the Legislative Assembly will be moved by Mr. Lockey, and seconded by Mr. Mifford. It is understood that an amendment on the address will be moved in the Assembly by Mr. Cowper, or by some other member of the late Government.

AUSTRALIAN MUTUAL PROVIDENT SOURTY.—A meeting of members of the above society, convensed by advertisement, was held yesterday afternoon, at the School of Arts.—To the purpose of considering questions arising out of the recent quinquennial investigation, and specially with reference to the preposed distribution of the sum of £1500 to the officers; of the society. There were about nity genilemen present. Mr. P. Elsworth was voted to the chair, and in opening the proceedings said, he looked up in the meeting as merely one for the discussion of masters affecting the mutual interests of the members, and not as intended to have any direct influence on the society. Nr. Ashlown them addressed the meeting, and stated that he and some other members of the secciety had been greatly astonished at the extently favourable results shown upon the late quienquennial investigation, and also at the disparity that there supresered in the distribution of profits; having met tegether to compare hotes they thought some mistake must have occurred, and that it would be destrible that a letter should be set; to the Directors on the subject. Mr. Ashdown then entered into some particulars respecting the policies he had taken out in the society; and concluded by moving the adoption of a letter which he read. The letter apressed the aurgries of the members at the extraordinary prosperity of the society which he read. The letter appressed and upon the expenses bere to the total furnity in order to remove the doubts and anxieties now provailing. Mr. Powell seconded the motion. He of the interest in such markets of the favour and concluded by purely in order to remove the doubts and anxieties now provailing. Coroners's Inqueres.—The City Coroner hald an inquest at the Poltemey Rodel, Cook's River, on Sanday, The deceased was a coloured man named John Smith, who was employed as groom by Mr. Gamnon, and who died on Sanday mounting from, as Dr. Sedgewick degoods, congestion of the lungs. Jury's vardict: "Deceased, aged forty years, died from congestion of the lungs brought on by cold, and had no medical advice."—Mr. Parker also held an inquest at Newtown, pasterday, on view of the body of Jane Duggan, who died on Sunday morning. Deceased's father is a beker, living at Newtown. The evidence of three or four witnessees, as well as Duggan's own admission, showed that he was a drunkard, and, notwithstanding the lithness of his children, had treated his wife with great hardness. Dr. Sedgewick gave evidence in the Geosaed died from croup. The jury's vardict was, "Deceased, eged nine nomine, died from natural canses." They also eigenstained the conduct of the father as reprehensible.—At a later hour of the day, the Core n r held an inquity at his office concerning the death of a child named Emma Raira Riger, aged three years and five menths. Deceased's parents are respectable prople, and treated the deceased with great affection and care. Owing, however, to the suddenness of deceased's death, a doctor coulk not be fatched in time, and therefore it wite that the case was brought before the coroner to obtain a certificate of burial. Ceroner's finding: "Deceased died from enhanction resulting from an attack of symmetry."

Letters of apolegy for absenting themselves were read from the Revs. R Mansfield, J. Reid, and Vanderkiets. The Chr. Attunan said that the object of their meeting was to advocate the passing of a permiseive Higuor law, and of all the soft-mee devised by philanthropiets for the gravings of men from intoiteation, this was the most promising. The first sobseme propounded was that of temperance, but this being found a failure, total sistinence was tried, but to this so many the lines were raised up, that its advantages were nullified. He was glad this meeting had been originated by a tea, since it brought a great many ladies together, and tamperance would never be a success until the ladies put that shoulders to the wheel. Women in the aggregate possessed much more influence than men. A large influence for good, but only a limited one for evil. This influence was exercised in three ways—in the aurasy, in the family circle, and in the social ofrole. They must get the ladies amongst them, or they would not have the men. The paper, together with the daily newspapers, having been inserted in a bottle and placed in the cavity, the foundation stone was laid with the usual formalities. Mr. Woodhouse then made a short address, in the course of which he spoke of the progress of Methodism in this colony. Later in the afternoon a tea meeting came off in a commoditious booth that had been erected for the purpose, and nicely decorated with flags. About a hundred and fifty persons sat down to tea. Subsequently a pablic meeting was held, Mr. Woodhouse presided; addresses were delivered by the Rev. Miceers. Wilson, Schofoled, and Rouse, and the treasurer gave a statement of accounts. A collection was made, and between £60 and £70 was obtained. We subjoin a description of the church about to be erroted—The style may be termed transition Early English. MEETING OF PARLIAMENT.

Artes a recess of nearly six months, Parliament will meet to-day for the dispatch of business. The principal work to be done has been already initiated, and it will be necessary for our readers to bear in mind some of the most remarkable events of the late campaign, to enable them to form correct conclusions in reference to the position of parties and the state of public sides.

The last session was one of rote rather for its disclosures and changes than for its legislative results. It commenced on the 22nd June, 1863, and closed on the 22nd April, 1864, during which period it met 145 times, and sat more than 1800 hours, fifty-four of which were after midnight. On the cessation of their labours so severe and prolonged, his Excellency's speech encouraged hon, members to lock with hopfulness to the future, because although those labours had not resulted in the passing of many new laws, they had in all probability paved the way. It the more easy solution in the ensuing session of questions of importance which still remained unsettled. The year 1863 will be memorable for the disclosure of the state of the inances of the country—for the overthrow of a Government which for years had held the reins of power—for a fiscal disturbance which has injured the trade of the port, and the mischievous effects of which will not ease to be felt for years to come. The last session, however, was not without effective legislation, although the results are out of all proportion to the time consumed. In addition to eleven private bills, sixteen public bills were passed, and have received the Royal sesent—the most prominent being the now famous Act which readers newspapers liable to postage, and the Act to provide a supersanuation fund and to regulate the granting of reftring and other allowiness of the country was the financial condition of the country, and the division which induced Mr. Cowper Government, that the greater part of the remaining period was occupied in obstructing the propers of the country, and the division which induc necessary enactments being passed for the purpose of placing our financial affairs in a sound and satisfactory condition.

The tuniness of the session was brought to a close on the 2rad April. The recess, therefore, has been of nearly six months' duration. The public business of 300,000 people ought certainly not to occupy the attention of Parliament more than four or five months annually; but with the exception of the last recess during the Cowper administration, Parliament has been neither proregued nor dissolved for six months since the inauguration of responsible Government. The recess after the first session of the first Parliament was of five months' duration. The inter-gnum between the dissolution of the first Parliament and the election of the second in December 1857, lasted three months. The first recess of the second Parliament in 1858, was of tweive days duration. The interregnum after the dissolution for the elections under the new Act of 1838, was little more than four months and a half. The first recess of the third Parliament lasted six weeks, and after the dissolution on the land question there was an interregnum of two months. The first recess of the present, or fourth Parliament, lasted nearly four months; the econd, four months; the third, six months and three days, and the present recess has centinued six months all but four days.

Although Parliament met in June the Estimates were not passed by the close of the year. If, therefore, the battles of party are to be renewed our conclusions under the new Act of 1835, was little more than four nouths and the all. Monday.

John Boward, 24, was brought before the Court by police constable Peaks, into whose custedy he had been given by corporal Finlay, charged with being a deserter from the 12th Regiment of foot. Corporal Finlay, who on Sanday afternoon met prisoner on the sandhills near the Barnacks, and then identified him, stated that he deserted the regiment in July, 1863. The Bench ordered that he be forwarded to the authorities at the military barracks.

Andrew McOnbery, master of the schooner Raven, was find 20a., with costs, for neglecting to exhibit a light on board after sunset, according to the barbur regulations.

John Kelly, a seaman, charged with stealing a quantity of clothing, value 54, the property of Robort Brown, was remanded until Thursday next.

Richard May, found drunk and rictous in Malceim'slace, was fined 10s.

Occar Ednaya, 17, was charged with stabbing John Hill. Prosecutor, who is a cook belonging to the Cherwell, depended that yeaterday he and prisoner, who is a sessuan of the same rhip, had some words, which resulted in prisoner striking him with a beleying pin, and subsequently stabbing him with a krife. Dr. Bhaw stated he was called in to see presentior, whom he found suffering from a wound over the eye about half an inch in length, and penutrating to the bone; the hemorrhage was very free; a small arrery having been divided; the wound might have been infloted by such a knife as that produced (an ordinary table knife). The steward and another seaman also gave evidence corroborative of that of the prosecutor. Prisoner, who had nothing to say in answer to the charge, was committed for trial to the next Quarter Sessions.

Our tobacco advices are to hand per mail, from which we extract:—"Statements from American circulars fully sustain the probability of short supplies and enhanced prices of tobacco. The extraordinary fluctuations in the American money market, the enormous rise in the price of gold, and commensurate depreciation of paper currency, with great and unmistakeable scarcity of labour in the States—must affect the market. There are also other causes in operation—drought has prevailed through the tobacco districts, and grain having been much more remunerative, tobacco planters have more remunerative, tobacco planters have turned their attention to the cultivation of cereals. The long-talked of tax upon tobacco drawback allowed on export tion. Negrohead and cavendish were dull of sale in the London market on account of extreme low rates ruling in the colonies, immense losses having been made by shippers. A considerable decrease in exports has been the result. We quote Virginia leaf is. 2d. to 2s.; strips, at 1s. 6d. to 2s.; western leaf, from 5d. to 1s. 4d.; negrohead and cavendish, from 8d. to 4s per lb. Manila and Ormond's Swiss cigars in good demand and market barely supplied.

The following are the quantities of wheat and flour shipped from the United Kingdom to the Australian colonies from the 15th of July to the 15th of August. To Sydney—William Cole, 600 qrs. wheat; La Hogue, flour, 200 cwt.; Woolloomooloo, flour, 411 cwt.; Colonial Empire, flour, 88 cwt. To Melbourne—Benares, flour, 875 cwt.; Ravensbourne, flour, 875 cwt.; Marco Polo, wheat, 897 qrs.; Scottish Chief, flour, 116 tons. To Auckland—Albert William, flour, 58 tons; Talbot, flour, 39 tons. Total, 335 tons of flour and 1497 qrs. of wheat.

circular, dated August 15th, we extract the following:

Although the departures for the Australian and New Zealand colonies have been fully up to the average during the past month, we are giad to find the value of exports thither show a material decline upon our returns for the month of June-July, which, by the addition of late entries to a very considerable extent, amounted to 55th, 65tl, whilst for the month now under series, such as the series of the fully, which should be seried to the series of the fully, which the present opportunity of again of months in the July, which the present opportunity of again of months in the series of the fully as that the present opportunity of again of months for the reaching feature until in rome instances, many weeks after the vened's electance. circular, duted Shanghai, 19th August:—
The coal market has not yet recovered from the depression conequent upon the stringency in the month of the market and the numerous arrivals of the past mouth. The same causes which have berefore operated so unfavourably for shippers still cause, and this, with the almost street most of the recent arrivals.

It is almost street most of the recent arrivals.

Sales for the plass month have been made from sales side and from gedowns in small loss, and the few cargoss that have been sold aften show a reduction on previous rates.

Sales of English steam roal have been made by the cargo at 5.0 tacle per ton. Cardiff, by the cargo, at 7.50 tacks per ton. Welsh coals, by the curpe, at 6.75 tacle per ton. American coals are at 1.10 facis, with sales of part cargoes. Rythey coals at 4.50 to 5.00 tacle, with sales from ships side and godd wan.

Arrivals since the let instant have been:—9040 tons English, 12.754 coar assertion, and 16.755 tons sydney.

These estimates refer only to original shipments affect as above, and do not therefore include atocks purchased here or shipped under orders to this for steamer uses.

From Mesers. Hunber, Houghton, and Co.'s. Circular, dated Batavia, 31st August, 1864, we take the following:

Produce is coming more freely to market, and we have to report upon our principal articles of export say:

Arrick, 4 per cent. overproof.—The abundance of shipping outness to have a beenedical influence upon this, and sales have been made at f. 70 per leaguer of 133 imperial galloms.

Coffee, Java.—Sume considerable parcels have been soid lately at f. 40 per picul, but the demand is again less active. Government will sell 25,000 piculs by public auction on the 16th prosimo, and on the 16th December a similar quantity. Wext Indian preparation (bute bean) is worth f. 41 to f. 43 per picul.

Ditto, Padang.—There have been no transactions disco the last Government auction of June, when it wereaged 53.77 per picul; the next quarterly sale will take piace about the end of next month, when between 40,000 and have been about the end of next mouth, when between 40,000 and and an alsahel at f. 16 35 to f. 18-90 per picul for No. 16, with the usual difference of t. 1 per number for other qualities On the 19th proxime, Government will sell by public suction 25,000 picula, on the 10th October 50,000, and on 10th December 75,007 siculas; these sales, thus comprising for the year 200,000 picula sugar. It is believed that next year satill larger quantity will be sold here by them.

Bies.—The export demand for what is known as Batavi's rice is very small this season, but planters are unwitting to submit to any further reduction in value, and are, therefore, sending down but trifting parcels. We have little alteration to note is the quotations, No. 1 Batavia at f. 160 to f. 173, second quality at f. 160 to f. 175, second quality at f. 180 to f. Lamponer f. the formand for proper demands.

White Ditto.—None offering.

Notmens.—Salenble at f. 18 ber picul.

Black Pepper.—Saleable at f. 14 30 for Lampong and f. 15 76 for Bencolen.

Naturega.—Saleable at f. 55 per picul.

Mace.—Dull at f. 30 to f. 25 per picul.

Mace.—Dull at f. 30 to f. 25 per picul.

Pearl Sago.—Present Singapore quotation 3 dollars 5 cents to 3 dollars 10 cents per picul.

Rattans.—Banjermassing at f. 12 to f. 14, and Padang at f. 9 to f. 10 15 per picul.

Freights.—Secking vessels continue to arrive from all quarters, and there is for the moment rather an oversupply, so that freights have sgain declined, and the rate for sugar to Holland cannot be quoted above f. 85 to f. 98 per last, equal to £4 26 dt to £4 6s per ton.

E. I. Company's conditions With the large amount of produce shortly to be sold by Government, and the supplies now coming forward from the private estates, the tennage required this par will be considerable, and the future course of the market will be governed by the rates ruling in the neighbouring ports. The principal transactions since our last have been.—

AUTION.—CHLORODYNE.—18 CHANGEY.—
Vice-Chancelier Sir W. P. Wood stated that Dr.
J. Cellis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne. That the statements of the desindant Fromms were deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say that they had been sworn to. Encinent hospital physicians of London stated that Dr. J. Cellis Browne was the discoverer of Chlorodyne; that they presentle it largely, and mean no other than Dr. Browne's.—See Times, July 13, 1864.

The public, therefore, are cautioned ageinst using any public, therefore, are cautioned against using an then DE. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLURO

The public, therefore, are contioned against using any other than DB. J. COLLIS BEOWRE'S CHILDRO-DYNE.

FEVERS, DYSENTERY, DIAERHGEA, Consumption, Congha, Asthusa, Brouchitis, Neuralgis, Rheumatism, &c.—The sefect and best remedy is that marvellous one known as Office Rodyne, M.R.C. S. L. (Ex-Array Medical Staff), and the secret of its recipe confided only to J. T. DAVENFORT, pharmacontical chemist, 33, Great Eastell-street. Bloomsbury-aguars, who is the sole manufacturer. Medical testimony turnished by the highest authorizer. Medical testimony turnished by the highest authorizer in military, naval, and civil practice, and the numerous graftfying statements front the public generally, carabithes this medicine as invaluable. In releves pein, soothes the system, indusing refreshing and soothing elsey, without producing or leaving any unpleasant effects like coptus, and may be taken at any time in a few drop decor.

and are justly indignant at its not being efficient. It is admitted that Morgan, the murderer, has been twice sighted in the open bush by parties of three and four police, who were out expressly for the object of securing his capture. In each instance an exciting chase of some miles occurred, and in both the result was the same, the villain getting out of sight and doubling back. In the first instance the pursuers and pursued, were running down a fence. Morgan hugging the posts until acopen panel offered a chance of a double, which proved effectual, the troopers continuing to ride shead long down a fence. Morgan hugging the posts until au open panel offered a chance of a double, which proved effectual, the troopers continuing to ride ahead long after losing sight of their quarry. In the second case Morgan topped a hill one hundred and fifty yards in sivance of inspector Zouch, and doubled out of sight before the latter could get np. In examining the reports of each of these affairs it is apparent that the first cause of escape was the bushranger being better mounted, and on further inquiry it will be found that the police horses had just previously had very hard work and were not in a condition to gallop. Morgan, on the centrary, is not likely to ride an inferior horse, mor is it probable he would distress the one he was riding unless hard pressed by the police. He wants and evidently has horses that can cover the ground faster thu those ridden by the force, and it appears reasonable to suppose that if he ever be taken in the open bush it must be by men on good and sound mounts. It is necessary, therefore, in the first place, that the police charged with the special duty of souring the bush should be mounted on fast horses, of good staying powers, and again that these horses should always be in a condition to gallop. It is of no use supplying hunvers or racers if men are ordered to ride a couple of hundred miles in a week, and immediately afterwards be told off Morgan hunting. However fast their horses may be when in candition, they will not catch Morgan unless be better horses be supplied than now, and they are kept fit to go, Morgan may yet have many months to live.

go, Morgan may yet have many months to live.

Beyond the ordinary duties entrusted to the police there is another source of protection most necessary to be supplied. We allude to mail guards who should be appointed on all those lines of route now continually infested by bushrangers. The postmaster when entering into contracts for the mail service, inserts a clause in the agreement rendering it compulsory on contractors to guard against impediments existing in their track by providing bosts and other appliances to overcome floods and other difficulties. But he apparently disregards the duty devolving on him of protecting the mail from violence. Had there been but two or three mail robberies the question of whether the expense of providing guards was necessary might be open for discussion, but when the stereotyped phrase of "the Mudgee mail was stuck up to-day," was so often repeated in telegrams, and is now only go, Morgan may yet have many months to live.

be open for discussion, but when the stereotyped phrase of "the Mudgee mail was stuck up to-day," was so often repeated in telegrams, and is now only varied by another locality being named, it is a matter of absolute necessity that the expense should be incurred. Bushrangers are evidently aware that mail drivers will not offer resistance to violence. To guard the mail from robbers is no part of their work or their employers contracts, they are simply paid to envey it from place to place. We cannot be surprised at this view of the oase being generally accepted by the drivers. They know, perhaps, better than mest people the means of revenge in the power of bushrangers, and judge rightly that their own safety depends on delivering their charge to a superior force. The mail robbeties have been so frequent that no reliance can now be placed on the undertaking of the Postmaster-General to convey correspondence in safety. To continue the present system without any attempt at improvement is very discreditable to the department and the colony. The mails should be protected at all hazards and at any expense. Te leave them at the mercy of any ruffian who ories "bail up," is a disgrace to the country, whilst it offers tempations to dissonest men to commit a crime without much chance of detection.
